1. How was Recovering Hope Treatment Center founded?

In 2014, six community-minded business people recognized that women were struggling to find residential substance use disorder treatment services that helped them overcome the challenge of separating from young children for an extended period to complete residential treatment.

Two years later, Recovering Hope Treatment Center, a 74-bed women's residential treatment center with a licensed onsite daycare center for children under the age of five, became reality. Mothers could now confidently pursue treatment with the peace of mind their young children would be safely cared for while they focused on their health.

Since 2016, Recovering Hope has increased the capacity of its residential facility to accommodate 108 beds; and has added an adult outpatient substance use disorder treatment program, and a comprehensive mental health therapy center that serves children, adolescents and adults.

Recovering Hope's warm, welcoming client-centered environment and compassionate highly trained professional staff continue to earn distinction for providing the gold standard in substance use disorder treatment and mental health therapy.
